

Time: 15 minutes	Title: People Bingo
This session is about:	An icebreaker to get participants up moving around and talking to each other.
Methods:	Discussion
Materials:	People Bingo cards
Key learning points:	To familiarise themselves with the names of other participants and discover something about them.
Trainers notes: Depending on the number of participants you have you will have to decide if they can use one persons' name for more than one square. You may decide to let them ask you and include your name in one of the squares if they are struggling.

Learning activities

Stage one:

- Give each participant a bingo card
- The participants have to complete the bingo cards by talking to each other and finding someone who meets the criteria of each square.
They can then put that person's name on the square and move onto another person.

Stage two:

- Once a participant completes a card and shouts bingo (or if the exercise if slowing down and discussion has stopped) bring the group back together as one.
- Ask them if there were any surprises or pick some of the squares and ask who met that criteria.
i.e. who has been to more than 3 continents?
